1993 is one of those years that for many has mostly faded from view. The gradual blindness that seems to be a gift of age affects the memories of the day-to-day routine of life lived 20 years ago. From what I do remember, 1993 was the year President Clinton began his first year in office, while Bobby Bowden and Heisman Trophy winner Charlie Ward were guiding the Seminoles to their first national championship. For the record, the Gators won their first a little later, although my memory prevents me from recalling the opponent. 1993 is also the year Page, Eichenblatt & Bennett opened their doors for the very first time.

For us, time was balanced between newborns and the cases we loved working on as a team. As a young firm, we focused on survival, paying the bills, and learning to turn challenges into opportunity. Some of our toughest cases turned into gold; others were simply tough. There were countless moments of laughter both at ourselves and with each other; moments in depositions when clients or opposing counsel surprised us with some statement of fact so absurd, it had to be true. We won some huge cases and, as trial lawyers must do, lost a few, too. There was no Facebook, LinkedIn, or smart-phones. Our firm was built on actual personal relationships, and networking meant joining people together, not linking machines. As we fostered these friendships, our business began to grow. And despite the wireless world of unconnected connections, we have stayed together practicing law in a human way, an emotional way, watching our families grow, sharing victory, experiencing tragedy and sadness, and treasuring laughter while remaining at the forefront of our field.

We have moved from a modest beginning to add lawyers, staff, and even purchased a firm home, but our philosophy has never changed. We never surrendered to billboards or television advertising. We were and are “for the people,” but have never claimed that as any special talent. The power, wisdom, energy, and strength that we gained through our 20 years has never been something you could advertise on the side of a bus or mask as qualifications with fancy ratings and terms.

Instead, we continue to rely on the commitment to and relationships with our clients, our friends, and our families. Our doors remain open the same way they have for 20 years; the philosophy and the foundations are as strong as ever.

The strength of our firm has always come from the synergy of our team—and the community members who have supported us. Many of our high school law clerks and runners have become lawyers themselves. Many of our former associates have their own firms, and we try our best to stay connected with everyone who has ever passed through our doors. Now, after imparting in our children our own principles and demonstrating by action our own dedication (or at least trying to), most have grown, some hoping to become lawyers themselves. In another 10 years, at our 30th anniversary, it is possible the sons and daughters of the original Page, Eichenblatt & Bennett team will be handling cases for the sons and daughters of clients who first retained us in 1993.

As our law firm celebrates its 20th year, the founding owners/partners have succumbed to reading glasses, gray hair, and in some cases no hair. Yet, however blurred the memories or old the firm's partners, Page, Eichenblatt & Bennett remains at its core the same team of people who started in Maitland with a single secretary and a few files. This shadow of who we once were has been and continues to be buoyed by a pledge to help people and build our community through nurturing relationships and old-fashioned hard work.

We want to say thank you to all who have passed through our doors and to those who continue to pass through them every day. It is you who make our firm a family. We have always been fond of inspirational quotes, and two of our favorites have hung on our walls since the day we began. Our commitment to their messages remains as firm today as it was many years ago.

"Our lives begin to end the day we become silent about things that matter."

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Speak up for the people who have no voice, for the rights of all the down-and-outers.

Speak out for justice!

Stand up for the poor and destitute!

Proverbs 31: 8-9
